Dear Hiring Manager,

I would like to express my strong enthusiasm in applying for the position of « [Job Role] » at « [Company Name] », as described in your advertisement. With solid experience in the digital services field and driven by a passion for designing high-performance architectures, I would be delighted to put my technical skills at the service of your [Team of Company].

In my current role at « [Current Company] », I have contributed to the development of strategic software solutions, including a « Transport Management System » optimizing routes and delivery tracking, as well as a « Booking Management System » regulating logistics flows. These projects highlight my dual expertise in back-end and front-end development. I also participated in the migration to a scalable cloud infrastructure on AWS, based on secure and automated deployments, fostering collaboration, continuous improvement in product quality, and cost reduction. Finally, I have developed strong skills in technical support, covering both the handling of common incidents and the resolution of complex issues.

[Job Motivation]

At "[Company Name]", I am motivated to apply my skills to reliable, secure, and scalable digital solutions. I place particular importance on listening and simplifying technical aspects to make digital tools accessible to everyone. My organizational skills and ability to collaborate effectively with colleagues, management, and external partners enable me to actively contribute to the success of digital projects.

Thank you very much for considering my application. I look forward to discussing how my skills can contribute to the ambitions of [the Company]. I remain available to arrange an interview at your convenience.

Yours sincerely,

Samuel Barbeaux
